

2017 Missouri MISSIONS OFFERING

MMO HELPS ASSOCIATIONS

When you give to the Missouri Missions Offering, 10 percent comes back to your association to support missions. Here's what several associations are doing with their churches' MMO gifts:

Linn-Livingston Association

hosted a Revitalization Conference last year, led by MBC pastoral ministries specialist Gary Mathes.

Thousand Hills Association

funds summer camps for children and teens, and last year it helped start a cowboy church in Alaska.

Bethel Baptist Association organizes mission trips from Louisiana to El Salvador, where volunteers help repair church buildings, start churches, and engage in other ministries.

Salt River Association invests in evangelism tent ministries for its county fair and the state fair.

Grand Crossings Association helps sponsor a Sports Crusaders volleyball camp that ministers to residents of Girls Town near Williamsburg.

Franklin Baptist Association provides computers and video projection equipment for use by churches.

Southeast Region Associations in this region are funding LifeCare Ministries, a new mobile medical ministry, crisis pregnancy counseling, and disaster relief.

Charleston Baptist Association invests in local ministries, including associational campgrounds.

Reynolds County Baptist Association is engaging in missions projects that include building a pavilion to minister to bicyclists on the TransAmerica Trail in Missouri.

Fellowship Association

funds a Mission Club that helps individuals and churches follow their hearts in missions across the U.S., including the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota.

Mid-Lakes Baptist Association

supports disaster relief efforts, construction mission trips — and its members build ramps and repair homes in the area.

Tri-County Association

supported a Pray 10 emphasis in its churches (a strategy to pray 10 minutes a day), with reported results of church growth and increased spiritual maturity.

Barry County Association

helps finance an annual ladies retreat, which last year attracted 120 participants.

Mid Missouri Baptist Association assisted in the planting of Anthem Church, which welcomed 185 people to its first service.

Pulaski Baptist Association sponsors mission trips to assist small churches hosting VBS in Illinois, and it hosts VBS for smaller churches at the association's camp.

Phelps and Dent Associations support summer missionaries and carry out camp programs.

Meramec Baptist Association has hosted a Men and Boys Wild Game Dinner, attracting more than 350 enthusiasts.

How will the Lord use your gifts to MMO in 2017 to support missions projects in your association?
